

OCTOBER 1996.

MARGARET MAY SWINBORN.

Dear Heather.

We feel the last paragraph is rather harsh and unkind. Perhaps it would be better to omit this paragraph, as the last sentence seems an attempt to justify the first, and elsewhere in the book it is pointed out that Margaret May coped exceedingly well during a difficult time.

Having said that, we congratulate you on an otherwise excellent "edition". We cannot add anything to your work, it must have taken a lot of putting together, and a lot of your time. By the way, have you spelled the "deliberate" mistake on the Special Licence? I expect the "Sparks" would have flown had it been noticed!

Conole is convinced it is a "slip of the pen". She and Richard would be very interested in having the book in the future, as only she had a very brief glance at it last night.

Congratulations!
